SERVICES AT ST CUTHBERT'S CHURCH, BURTON FLEMING

came here, we lived in the North West of England but you had to drive out of the town before you saw the glorious autumn sunsets that we see here. The quality of the natural light changes in autumn - fabulous. Then there's the change in temperature, the hint at something colder to come, the cool breeze, the sense of time moving on - delightful. Autumn is the season where we encounter the leaves falling from the trees: various birds heading off to warmer climates. We see the plants and flowers appear to be coming to an untimely end. Autumn is the season when the great work of creation carries on in quieter, unseen ways, the nutrients from leaves returning to the ground. The whole earth seems to settle into a quieter rhythm. In church life we have had all our Harvest celebrations and we have thanked God for the abundance of gifts we enjoy. I know that for many, the shorter days and longer nights can feel oppressive and bleak and that some need to make sure to prioritise self-care in this season. Normally, I look forward to autumn, but as we settle into the chill and long nights of autumn 2022, I'm led to reflect back on the time that has passed since March 2020. I don't know if I can remember autumn 2020, it seemed to come and go in a Covid blur of lock-downs and changing restrictions. How can we be at autumn 2022 already? Two years ago, in autumn 2020, we were realising all the pain and challenges Covid would bring. Perhaps this autumn, we all might find it beneficial to practice a little more care as the nights draw in and the temperatures drop, not just for ourselves but for our neighbours too, in fact for anyone in need and whom we are able to help.

Take care
Love & blessings,
Revd Barbara

The October coffee morning saw a departure from the usual format to include the Great Marrow/Pumpkin competition alongside a light lunch option of homemade soup.

There were a few entries beforehand but sadly not everyone submitted their entries on the day, but this didn't dampen spirits or reduce the fun on the day. Our amazing judges, Brian Stockdale and Ruth Allerston once more took the helm and it saw Elwyn Harper triumph and win the heaviest/largest. The children's entry was won by the new family to the village at Easter Ende, who were very excited to be entering. Thanks for joining in supporting us.

A FEW WORDS FROM ME

Dear Friends,
