MESSAGE FROM REV BARBARA

Dear Friends,

It's the time of year when Harvest Festivals are celebrated all over the country. And not just in the countryside where you would think was most appropriate. What do the townies (even though there are plenty of fields) have to do with bringing in the crops safely? Essentially, harvest is about thanking God for the growth of the summer's crops and for getting them in.

Harvest is a good time for evaluating just how we receive our food. Because we are detached from the production of food we can forget the struggles made by those who produce it. A plastic and polystyrene wrapped joint of meat or a 2 litre bottle full of milk or a jar of coffee say very little of how the journey from the farm to the supermarket was made.

Whether food was produced locally or in another country we should keep to our Christian principles and try not accept produce when the cost is the suffering of others.

Fairtrade shows that trade can be a means out of poverty if the conditions are right. Seven million disadvantaged producers, workers and their families are benefiting from Fairtrade, but they and millions more still remain at the mercy of unfair international trade rules. That's why we need to do more than buy Fairtrade products - we also need to campaign for trade justice. The fact that Fairtrade has allowed producers to transform their lives, also shows that the current system of trade is not working. So we must remember to thank God for the work that our farmers do but also to act and speak out for the millions of exploited farm workers around the world.

With love & blessings,
 Revd Barbara
